British Troops Make Progress on Front of Thousand Yards; Germans Driven from Strong Positions

BERLIN, July 18.—Both the British and French armies resumed the allied offensive on both sides of the Somme yesterday evening and last night with strong attacks against German positions, it was officially announced this afternoon.

British attacks against the village of Pozieres and French attacks in the region of Blaches, Maisonette, Barleux and Soyecourt were repulsed with heavy enemy losses.

"At numerous places on the northern front, enemy patrols were repulsed," said the official statement. "On both sides of the Somme, after artillery preparation throughout the day, strong enemy attacks were launched in the evening against Pozieres and the positions eastward, also against Maisonette, Blaches, Barleux and Soyecourt. These attacks were everywhere repulsed with heavy enemy losses."

On the Verdun front there was lively artillery fire and small hand grenade combats.

PARIS, July 18.—The Germans have launched a heavy counter attack against newly won French positions west of Peronne, the war office announced today. Thus far all German attacks south of the Somme have been repulsed but heavy fighting is still going on.

The Germans repeatedly attacked La Maisonette but were repulsed each time with very heavy losses. The fighting then extended along a large sector of the front occupied by the French in the first week of the Anglo-French offensive. The most violent combat is going on near the village of Blaches, one mile from Peronne.

The Germans were active last night on the Verdun front on both banks of the Meuse. On the west bank a German attack against Hill 304 was checked. On the east bank German grenade attacks in the region of Fleury were repulsed.

SENATE ADOPTS NAVAL PROGRAM OF PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The senate today adopted the naval program urged by President Wilson—eight capital ships this year and sixteen in three years. Passages of the whole naval bill is near.

CAPTAIN KOENIG LIKES BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md., July 18.—Here is the Auf wiedersehn of Captain Koenig, of the first trans-Atlantic submarine freighter, as given to the United Press, for the people of the United States: "Ihr land und ich gefallt mir sehr, und ich hoffe bald zuruckzukommen. Die leute in Baltimore sind sehr freundlich zu uns gewesen." Translated, this means: "Your country and I hope to come back soon. The people in Baltimore have been very friendly to us."

WOUNDED MARINE FROM LA CROSSE SENDS WORD OF REASSURANCE HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Johnson, 414 North Sixteenth street, today received a letter from their son, Oscar J. Johnson, corporal of United States marines, who was wounded in aiding the suppression of a native uprising at Santiago, San Domingo, several days ago.

With the letter was a communication from the war department stating that Johnson was being cared for aboard a hospital ship.

"U. S. S. Solace,"

"Monte Cristi,"

"July 9, 1916."

"Dear Parents and Sisters:

"Am feeling fine, but was shot up a little bit the third of July in a battle with the rebel. I was shot in the jaw. The bullet went down my shoulder for about six inches. They have gotten it out and my wound is now healing. There was one corporal killed in my company and five of us wounded. We killed 29 rebels and wounded 27. I am writing with my right hand and that was the shoulder that the bullet went through, so you can see that I am getting along nicely. We met with a lot of fighting every day, since we began to go inland. The fight in which I was injured was the last.

Fries And City Hall Mourn The Death Of Mascot

There is mourning in the city hall and the loop district today over a heat victim who passed over yesterday. He was Joe, Irish water spaniel, grave and beloved mascot of the city hall.

City Comptroller William J. Fries was hardest hit of all, for Joe had been his faithful friend for nine years, but not an employee in the city building but felt the loss of the good-natured, dignified old hunter.

Joe was mercifully sent to sleep by a veterinary yesterday after a severe illness with distemper induced by the heat. He had not eaten for days before the end, and his usually plump sides were gaunt and rigid by lack of nourishment.

Joe had not missed a day at the city hall office of his master for years until his illness.

BIKES WRECKED IN COLLISION AT RACE MEET

C. L. Hood's Fabrin Loses Apparent Cinch of First Heat of Trot by Bad Break

A collision in which two sulkeys were broken marked the first day of the La Crosse Trotting Association's meeting at the fair grounds this afternoon, when Ideal Val and Chief Joseph became mixed up on the back stretch. The accident occurred on the first lap of the first heat in the 2:30 trot. No one was hurt.

Fabrin, owned by C. L. Hood, with W. N. Millard of this city on the bike, looked like a certain winner in the thirty trot until a bad break on the last lap. By the time the driver had managed to pull his steed down on all fours again he was hopelessly behind, but it was expected that the local speedster would give a good account in later heats.

The weather was ideal for the meet, and a good-sized crowd had turned out at 1:30 this afternoon, prepared for the racing and the aeroplane exhibition flights. The track was considered to be in the best shape possible, hard, smooth and fast to a degree.

The combination of proper conditions resulted in fast time in the first two heats, the first leg of the 2:24 pace going in 2:16.14 to Direct C. Burnett. Lula McKinney was second and Ben O. C. third.

In the 2:30 trot, Bernie McGregor finished in the lead of the first heat. Summit was second and Halley, third.

COAST SENATORS LOSE FIGHT TO GET BIG SHIPS

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Pacific coast senators today were defeated, 18 to 48 in an attempt to provide by amendment to the general naval bill that three of the proposed capital ships be maintained permanently on the Pacific coast.

Senators Works, Phelan and Jones made emphatic speeches for proposal of which Works was the author.

"The next battle the United States fleet may fight," said Senator Phelan, "may be on the Pacific ocean. If so the United States has not a single first-class vessel for its fighting line."

Senators voting for the proposal were: Ashurst, Chamberlain, Clapp, Cummins, James, Johnson, La Follette, Lane, Oliver, Phelan, Pittman, Poindestex, Smith, Arizona; Smoot, Sutherland, Vardaman and Works.

Works, Phelan and Jones made emphatic speeches for proposal of which Works was the author.

LAREDO RESIDENTS DEMAND REMOVAL OF UNSANITARY GUARDS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 18.—Eight thousand national guardsmen now stationed at Laredo will be transferred to other border points because citizens of that place objected to sanitary conditions in the militia camps.

Laredo citizens reported to Congressman Gardner that conditions in the camps are "horrible and intolerable."

General Funston said he had not heard of these conditions until Laredo citizens made them known. He said he could not have the troops in "so horrible a place," and would move them at once.

General Frederick Funston announced last night his intention to remove from Laredo most of the 8,000 national guardsmen now engaged there because of the complaints.

PRESIDENT VISITS SENATE TO URGE PASSAGE OF LAWS

WASHINGTON, July 18.—President Wilson today, without advance notice, visited the capital to confer with Senator Kern, democratic leader. The president called to urge personally, it was said, the passage of a national child labor bill, and the workmen's compensation bill which the democratic caucus tentatively has decided must go over until next December.

He asked also, it is understood, an early adjournment of congress. The caucus date of August 20 is satisfactory to him.

The president informed leaders of the senate that he did not wish to be notified of his nomination and to begin his campaign until the child labor and workmen's compensation bills had been passed.

The fact of the president's call ran through the capital like wildfire. The smoking-rooms were crowded with curious, puzzled and, later, some angry senators.

BIDS $60,000 FOR PAPER

Pays $21.50 And Night In Jail To Avoid Drink Bill

"I did," said Alois Bushina to the bartender at the Third Street house Sunday afternoon, when the mixer suggested that he pay his shot.

"You didn't," retorted the bartender.

Thus the row started. The crash of a beerglass through the big mirror behind the bar punctuated the tumult. The police came and Alois spent the Sabbath evening in jail. Yesterday afternoon the city took the purse—a fine of $7.50 from Bushina for disorderly conduct.

That wasn't all of Bushina's difficulty, however, for the Michel brewery slapped a garnishment on the roll the police took away from him when he arrived at the station. He had to pay $24 for the smashed mirror before he was set free.

However, Alois won his point. He has not paid for the drink.

GERMAN RETREAT OF TEN MILES IS RUSSIAN CLAIM

Kaledin's Left Wing Sweeps the Germans Back in Volhynia; Lines Advanced to North Bank of Lipa

ALL RUSS ARE ACTIVE

Left Wing in Bukowina Again Becomes Active Against Reinforced Austrians; Interest in Caucasus

BERLIN, via Wireless to Sayville, L. I., July 18.—Russian troops are everywhere on the offensive on the Austrian front, but at only one point, in Volhynia, have they caused an Austrian retreatment, said an official statement from the Austrian war office received today. The statement admits the retreat of the Austrians behind the Lipa river.

Russian troops attempted unsuccessfully to take advantage of the Austro-German retreatment in Volhynia with attacks west and southwest of Lutsk, all of which were repulsed.

The Russians under General Kuropatkin continued their strong offensive on the Riga front yesterday, penetrating German trenches at some points but being ejected afterwards with heavy losses.

PETROGRAD, July 18.—The Germans have retreated nearly ten miles in Volhynia, under the swift advance of General Kaledin's left wing.

In their hasty retreatment, several thousand more prisoners, a number of heavy guns and large supplies of war material have fallen into the hands of the Russians. The retreat was made necessary when several Russian regiments broke through the German front and threatened to surround a part of General von Linsingen's army. The Russians have advanced their lines to the north bank of the River Lipa and are strengthening their new positions on the entire front. The advance widens the Russian salient extending into the Austro-German front southeast of Kovle, thus removing the danger of crushing attacks on both sides of the Russian wedge.

All along the eastern front, the czar's armies have suddenly resumed the initiative. The Russian left wing in southern Bukowina is again in motion against the reinforced Austrian army. The infantry combats are becoming more frequent in Galicia and both artillery and infantry activity are reported on General Kuropatkin's front in the Dvinsk-Riga region on the north. Thirteen thousand prisoners were taken yesterday, the war office claims.

The Russian commanders on the Austro-German front, however, are compelled to share public interest with the Grand Duke Nicholas, whose new offensive in the Caucasus continues to make progress.

FRENCH ISLANDER LOSES HOME IN FIRE AT NOON

House Burns to the Ground but Bucket Brigade Saves the Barn on the Place

The residence of Albert Howe on French Island, the property of Hubert Dregon of North La Crosse, burned to the ground shortly before noon today. Two theories as to the fire's origin were advanced. Mr. Howe is of the opinion that it commenced by spontaneous combustion in a clothes closet on the second floor. It was also said that the fire started from an exploding gasoline stove. The stove had been left lighted. No one was at home when the fire broke out.

Only the hardest efforts of sixty French Island campers, residents and farm hands, who came on the run from all directions when the fire was noticed, saved a large barn on the place. The campers formed a bucket brigade with one end of the line at the edge of French Slough, passing water buckets to those nearest the blazing building.

The home burned for an hour. While the fire was at its height cartridges in an old revolver of large caliber, which had been left behind in the burning house, began exploding. One bullet tore a hole through the side of the building and the volunteer fire fighters resumed their positions when the explosions stopped.

The damage is said to be about $1,000. The house was small. The larger part of the furniture was carried out by members of the Howe family before the fire gained headway.

E. S. DITTMAN AND WALTER HOSELY MERCHANTS' MEN

Affairs of Old Merchants' Association Wound Up at Meeting Called by Vice President J. J. Felber

MFARLAND TELLS WORK

Benefits to Be Derived from Bureau Protective and Constructive, Meeting Is Told

The Merchants' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce last night elected Edwin S. Dittman and Walter Hosely directors to represent the bureau on the governing board of the parent organization. Mr. Dittman was elected for the two year term, and Mr. Hosely for one year. A meeting of the old Merchants' association was called immediately afterwards by Vice-President J. J. Felber and its affairs were wound up.

There was a large attendance in spite of the extremely hot evening. The meeting was called to order by First Vice-president W. F. Goodrich, in the absence of President Frank P. Hixon. S. F. Fellows was elected secretary for the meeting. The roll call of members showed that 125 members had already enrolled for this bureau.

Explains Organization

Mr. McFarland explained the form of organization of the new Chamber on the work of the Merchants' Bureau. He divided the work of the bureau into two divisions—constructive and protective. He said that there were two ways in which the members of the Merchants' Bureau could secure benefit from being a member. On the protective side he could benefit from the regulation of trade evils, uniform closing hours, censorship of soliciting, better trade relations, and co-operative credit rating.

On the constructive side he pointed out the many kinds of work that can be successfully done to bring about increased trade.

Arrange For Transfer

Chairman Goodrich announced that President Hixon had appointed a committee to represent the Chamber of Commerce in bringing the various organizations into the Chamber of Commerce. This committee is composed of W. F. Goodrich, J. W. Hanks and F. W. Pittman. Following election of Mr. Dittman and Mr. Hosely as directors, the meeting adjourned, and Mr. Felber called the meeting of the Merchants' association. A committee composed of Harry Newburg, S. F. Fellows and Alexander Rose was appointed to confer with the Chamber of Commerce committee to bring about a transfer of the property of the Merchants' association to the Merchants' bureau.

North Side Meet Wednesday

The next bureau meeting to be held will be that of the Progressive League Bureau Wednesday night at Fielstad hall on the north side. A delegation of members of the Chamber will meet at the La Crosse Club tomorrow night at 7:45 to go over to the meeting.

MATHEWS RESIGNS FROM UTILITIES STATISTICAL STAFF

MADISON, Wis., July 18.—George C. Mathews, for the past four years head of the statistical staff that deals with the utilities under the Wisconsin railroad commission, has handed in his resignation to take effect September 1. Mathews is the fourth of the well-known statisticians who have left the railroad commission recently. It is said that other resignations will follow.

MURDER MYSTERY

LA SALLE, Ill., July 18.—A murder mystery confronted the local authorities today with the finding of the body of Joseph Derix, 25, chauffeur at a local garage, in the middle of a road six miles south of here. Derix had been shot through the head twice. No attempt was made at robbery.

BRICK RESIDENCE IS CONVERTED INTO FORT WIFE WIELDS RIFLE

MOTHERS' PENSION FUNDS NEARLY GONE FIFTY MAY SUFFER

Half Hundred Dependent Mothers Threatened with the Loss of Support from the County

BOARD GAVE BUT $5,000

Special Meeting of the Supervisors Suggested to Make Up the Deficit

The 1916 mothers' pension appropriation of La Crosse county is nearly exhausted, and it became known today that unless some means is found to secure additional funds, fifty-one mothers of the county who are dependent, at least to some degree, on the monthly pension money, will be left almost penniless.

Less Than Month's Supply

After paying pensions aggregating a total of $659 to fifty-one mothers this month, the sum of $645 is left in the treasury, according to Treasurer Ole Lund, for the balance of the year. The county board appropriated $5,000 for mothers' pensions for 1916.

At that time it was pointed out by County Judge John Brindley that the appropriation was too small. Members of the county board contended that it was enough, however, and the supervisors decided to let the $5,000 appropriation stand.

County Clerk Bert A. Jolivet said today: "The number of mothers applying for pension has increased every month, and there is a possibility that more will ask a part of the present funds this month."

Special Session

That a special meeting of the county board of supervisors might be called to appropriate more money for the depleted fund was hinted at this morning by the county clerk. He said that he had no authority to pay the orders of County Judge Brindley after the fund is exhausted.

Whether the finance committee of the county board, which was notified of the shortage today, can take it upon itself to authorize the payment of pensions, is a question.

Just what will happen if the county clerk fails to pay the orders of the county judge, in the event that no further funds are provided, is another matter for conjecture in connection with the situation. The clerk can be cited for contempt of court if he does not honor the orders, it was pointed out, but if he should take it upon himself to pay the orders, with no funds in the treasury for the purpose, he will be personally liable, he declared.

It was understood today that the pension fund has been conserved recently, by Judge Brindley disallowing several applications. Nine women were refused participation in the fund, it was said, on the ground they have other and sufficient means of support.

EIGHT-HOUR-DAY DEMANDS REFUSED MACHINISTS OUT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 18.—Without disorder 1,500 machinists at the Allis-Chalmers and the Pawling & Harris-Chalmers manufacturing companies went out on a strike for an eight-hour day. Machinists and members of metal trades unions in other shops are expected to follow. Union men predict that nearly 100 plants and 20,000 men will be affected within a few days.

The strike, which was scheduled to start on Monday, was delayed twenty-four hours at the request of Governor E. L. Philipp while further attempts were made to settle differences. The governor announced that his efforts were futile.

Neighborhood Black for Blocks; Entire Police Reserves Are Called Out to Stop the Fusillade

CHICAGO, July 18.—Henry McIntyre, apparently heat crazed, Negro, was shot and fatally wounded this morning, after killing five persons and seriously wounding three. He died later at a hospital.

For hours he held off the entire police reserve of the city from the first story of a brick house which he occupied with his wife. A desperate battle being waged for hours, with dynamite, rifles and automatic revolvers.

After the police had besieged McIntyre in his home for hours, Detective Sergeant Ed Hughes walked into

A letter made public by the police, was found in Henry McIntyre's house.
"The Lord has commanded I and also my wife. Almighty God has made me a prophet unto all nations and also my wife, Hattie McIntyre," the letter read. "You shall know that the Lord has sent me to gather unto the Lord a remnant of the Adonlc seed."
The letter then rambled on for about 200 words.
"I must die in this land that I may carry my reports unto the Almighty God concerning the land of the United States," it concluded.

the front door while the Negro was firing through the window. He took no chances, but shot him at once. The extent of his injuries are not known.

Dead Spectacular

Hughes' deed was spectacular. He startled the besiegers by calmly leaving them and walking up the path towards the house. As he neared the door he drew his gun and walked into the house.

"I found McIntyre crouched at a window," said Hughes. "He was shooting. I took no chances. I fired as he turned towards me."

Hughes' bullet struck McIntyre in the forehead. On the floor beside the murderer lay the body of his wife. Around her waist was a belt of cartridges. McIntyre was rushed to a hospital, where it was said he would die. He was unconscious.

In the effort to dislodge the crazed Negro, police had thrown several sticks of dynamite into the house, but it did no damage. They were planning further to blow up the building when Hughes cut short their plans by shooting McIntyre.

Mrs. McIntyre died beside her husband. She was found dead when Detective Sergeant Ed Hughes rushed through the doorway.

PAPER SUITS FOR AVIATORS
A new use for paper has been found in the manufacture of clothing for aviators. Paper is better than most fabrics for keeping out the cold encountered at high altitudes. A special kind of paper, thin and light in weight has been made for this purpose. It is so tough that it can be washed and dried. The full suit includes, coat, trousers, socks, cap with ear laps, and gloves which can be worn inside of cloth gloves if desired. It is said that these paper suits are being used extensively by the aviators of the German Army.

VERDICT NOT "VINDICATION"

No doubt the evidence in the Orpet case, considered under the instructions of the court, justified the verdict of "not guilty", wherefore society is under obligation to regard the young man as cleared of the murder charge. All along it has seemed that there was a serious flaw in the state's case, and the outcome was not unexpected, but evidence which was beyond dispute fixed upon the young man conduct so reprehensible that no verdict could leave him much claim to respectability. He won a young girl's confidence only to betray it; he sneaked away in the night to meet her; he left her dead alone in a wood; he lied about the whole matter. He may prate of "vindication", but it will not help him. He is a cad and a coward and deserves the contempt of good men and women.

There should be some means of punishing young libertines, in this and similar cases, where the murder charge fails. The protection of society demands that they be held accountable. Orpet did not slay Marian Lambert; he did not give her poison or induce her to take it. A jury has said so. But by wronging her under the seal of an engagement and then deserting her, he became no less responsible for the girl's death than had he been guilty as charged. A man who does that has the heart of a bastard cur.

THE GOOD WORK CONTINUES

Organization of the bureaux of the Chamber of Commerce continues to proceed upon eminently satisfactory lines. The Civic and the Conventions and Publicity bureaux, thus far, are most ably officered. The last elections—Frank Sisson and L. H. Martin for the Shippers; Argyle Scott and Albert Miller for the Manufacturers and Jobbers—are no less the part of wisdom. Vice President Sisson has always been a doer as well as a thinker; not less than in his own ably conducted affairs has he represented progressive and willing service in public matters. Longwhile a reliable and trusted leader in business circles, Mr. Martin does not now for the first time give himself to municipal endeavor. These men measure up to the high standards set by the Chamber of Commerce.

The selection of Messrs. Scott and Miller is a concession to the well-taken demand for young men to participate in the active business of the Chamber. We confess to much confidence in the vigor and ambition of youth, in "pep". Men whose powers of reason are fully developed, still fired by the ideals and ardor of young manhood, bring to their efforts that enthusiasm which infuses into organization the living nerve and fibre upon which achievement is built. We expect much—the public does—of these young men.

Indeed, if the Chamber of Commerce shall bring to the completion of its organization the high standard of quality so far maintained, it will indeed be a powerful civic machine.

THE "Q" AND SAFETY FIRST

The program through which Agent H. B. Smith, of the "Burlington", seeks the co-operation of citizens in diminishing the danger of railroad accidents, should win favor and support. Particularly it seeks to avoid that large class of misfortunes that result from trespass upon the property of railroads where danger always lurks, and where the accountability of the individual is inescapable.

The law holds the railroads to strict regulations and large responsibility for human life upon its property. This is most proper, for the roads are public servants and, so far as they follow public thoroughfares, they operate upon an easement—the mere right of use. But it is equally proper for the public to have regard for the unavoidable nature of railroad operation, and to have due concern for safety when compelled to be about places involving an element of risk; certainly they can borrow no excuse for deliberate and habitual trespass upon grounds where hazard is inevitable.

As a matter of justice as well as safety, then, every citizen should gladly do his part in a campaign to avoid dangers and reduce the percentage of accidents to the minimum that is possible under existing conditions.

PLAINLY ONLY A TRADE SHIP

As was expected, the state department has declared the Deutschland to be a trade ship. Her equipment and errand made no other decision possible, and even a vague neutrality could counsel no other course.

The voyage of the Deutschland was a distinctive step in sub-sea navigation. Of course its chief significance is the larger availability and wider scope of the submarine for war purposes, for the business of peace will have no use for the necessarily restricted and slower process of either freight or passenger traffic under-seas. A further development of the submarine freighter may render nugatory the present methods of commercial blockade. With a fleet of several thousand undersea freighters Germany's commercial independence during the war could be largely restored.

NO RELIEF IN SIGHT FOR THIRTY-SIX HOURS

CHICAGO, July 18.—No relief from the middle west heat is in sight for the next 36 hours, the weather bureau announced Monday.

Although the Chicago temperature was moderated by the lake breeze, three deaths attributed to the heat, were recorded here in the past twenty-four hours.

The mercury hit the century mark Sunday at Springfield, Ill., Peoria, Ill., Kansas City, Mo., Fort Smith, Ark., and Fort Worth, Texas.

Around the Corner
A street carnival now touring the south is seemingly the repository of a most perplexing military secret. On a recent visit by this particular carnival to a Tennessee city a part of the attending throng heard a barker extol the clairvoyant powers of Madame—
This goddess of wisdom, while thoroughly blindfolded, gave instant answers to any questions. The seeker after truth merely wrote on a slip of paper the question nearest his heart, which, being read out by the barker in the hearing of all the crowd, was publicly answered.

Whether Minnie still loved Tom and where the old hermit buried the gold were questions legitimate enough, but that somebody had taken advantage of a lady's trustful disposition her answer revealed when Madame — was confronted with the query:
"Where's Villa?"
Her reply was:
"Her real name is not Villa. It is Margaret, and she is now in Atlanta, Ga."—Saturday Evening Post.

Silence is Golden
A fussy little woman with gold-rimmed spectacles and a thoughtful brow got into a tram and took the only unoccupied seat.
The man next to her evidently had been drinking, and for a while she contented herself with merely contemptuously sniffing at her neighbor, but finally she called up the conductor.

"Conductor," she demanded, indignantly, "do you permit drunken persons to ride upon this tram?"
"No, ma'am," replied the official in a confidential whisper. "But don't say a word, and stay where you are, ma'am. If you hadn't told me I'd never have noticed you."—Tid-Bits.

THE TRIBUNE'S DAILY TRAVELETTE
(By Nixsah)

TABRIZ
Tabriz is one of the most prosperous cities in Persia, which means that it is in a state of rather painful transition from the ways and days of the old east to the manners and customs which the east calls western. The west is being introduced into Tabriz largely by Russia; and as Kipling remarked before England and Russia adopted their present attitude of brotherly alliance, Russia is not the most easterly of western peoples, but the most westerly of orientals. From all of which it is easy to deduce that the present condition of Tabriz is a queer mixture.

It is. The old Persian touch is still strongest, of course, in the dress of the people and the style of the building, but after half a dozen Persian costumes, you may see two or three dandies who have adopted the Russian fashions, and even an occasional individual whose clothing looks as if at the beginning of its hard life it had hailed from the U. S. A. and would still be recognizable if it could only enjoy a pressing. The same thing is true of the shops, which range all the way from a typical and undiluted Asiatic bazaar to establishments quite European. It would be too much to say, however, that the hearts of the people have taken on the same half-western condition. The Orient is too firmly established there. Tabriz has a hard-luck tale not easy to match among cities. One of the leading features of the landscape is a magnificent old volcano towering in the background and every few centuries that mountain feels moved to turn over restlessly in his sleep. At such times Tabriz is more or less destroyed, usually more. Besides incidents such as these, human volcanoes of all sorts, from Tamerlane down to petty nomad chieftains have taken her and sacked her, and in default of such entertainment, Tabriz often staged little local revolts of her own. Since the hand of Europe has been dominant, while the fine full oriental flavor of the city has been diluted, there has been comparative peace and order in Tabriz. Even the volcano has remained quiet. The autonomy of Persia has doubtless been somewhat damaged, but the carpet business thrives.

Every mother there was asking in her heart, "Did I punish my children by what was in their hearts, or just by the trouble they made me?"
And the silence lasted so long that it became awkward. Finally Mrs. Prentiss crossed the room and stood by Prudence's side. She laid a hand tenderly on the young girl's arm, and said in a voice that was slightly tremulous:
"I believe you are right, my dear. It is what girls are at heart that really counts. I believe your sisters are all you say they are. And one thing I am very sure of—they are happy girls to have a sister so patient, and loving, and just. Not all real mothers have as much to their credit."

"I am sure you meant well, Lark," she said in a low voice, striving hard to keep down the bitter resentment in her heart. "I know you did. But you should not have brought that—that thing—into the house. Pick him up at once, and take him out-of-doors and let him go."

But this was not readily done. In spite of her shame and deep dismay, Lark refused to touch the toad with her fingers.

"I can't touch him, Prudence—I simply can't," she whimpered. "We shoved him in with the broom handle before."

And as no one else was willing to touch it, and as the Ladies clustered together in confusion, and with much laughter, in the far corner of the other room, Prudence brought broom and the not unwilling toad was helped to other quarters.

"Now go," said Prudence quickly, and Lark was swift to avail herself of the permission.

Followed a quiet hour, and then the Ladies put aside their sewing and walked about the room, chatting in little groups. With a significant glance to Fairy, Prudence walked calmly to the double doors between the dining room and the sitting-room. The eyes of the Ladies followed her with interest and even enthusiasm. They were hungry. Prudence slowly opened wide the doors, and—stood amazed! The Ladies clustered about her, and stood amazed also. The dining-room was there, and the table! But the appearance of the place was vastly different! The snowy cloth was draped artistically over a picture on the wall, the lowest edges well above the floor. The plates and traps, napkin-covered, were safely stowed away on the floor in distant corners. The kitchen scrub basket had been brought in and turned upside down to afford a fitting resting place for the borrowed punch bowl, full to overflowing with fragrant lemonade.

And at the table were three dirty, disheveled little figures, bending seriously over piles of mud. A not-unrecognizable Venus de Milo occupied the center of the table. Connie was painstakingly at work on some animal, a dog perhaps, or possibly an elephant. And—
The three young modelers looked up in exclamatory consternation as the doors opened.

"Oh, are you ready?" cried Carol. "How the time has flown! We had no idea you'd be ready so soon. Oh, we are sorry, Prudence. We intended to have everything fixed properly for you again. We needed a flat place for our modeling. It's a shame, that's what it is. Isn't that a handsome Venus? I did that!—If you'll just shut the door one minute, Prudence, we'll have everything exactly as you left it. And we're as sorry as can be. You can have my Venus for a centerpiece, if you like."

Prudence silently closed the doors, and the Ladies, laughing significantly, drew away.
"Don't you think, my dear," began Mrs. Prentiss too sweetly, "that they are a little more than you can manage? Don't you really think an older woman is needed?"
"I do not think so," cried Fairy, before her sister could speak, "no older woman could be kinder, or sweeter, or more patient and helpful than Prue."

"Undoubtedly true! But something more is needed, I am afraid! It appears that girls are a little more disorderly than in my own young days! Perhaps I do not judge advisedly, but it seems to me they are a little—unmanageable."

"Indeed they are not," cried Prudence loyally. "They are young, lively, mischievous, I know—and I am glad of it. But I have lived with them ever since they were born, and I ought to know them. They are unselfish, they are sympathetic, they are always generous. They do foolish and irritating things—but never things that are hateful and mean. They are all right at heart, and that is all that counts. They are not bad girls! What have they done today? They were exasperating, and humiliating, too, but what did they do that was really mean? They embarrassed and mortified me, but not intentionally! I can't punish them for the effect on me, you know! Would that be just or fair? At heart, they meant no harm."

They were slender, yet gave a suggestion of sturdiness. Carol's face was a delicately tinted oval, brightened by clear and sparkling eyes of blue. She was really beautiful, bright, attractive and vivacious. She made friends readily and was always considered the "most popular girl in our crowd"—whatever Carol's crowd at the time might be. But she was not extremely clever, caring little for study, and with no especial talent in any direction. Lark was as nearly contrasting as any sister could be. Her face was pale, her eyes were dark brown and full of shadows, and she was a brilliant and earnest student. For each other the twins felt a passionate devotion that was very beautiful, but ludicrous as well.

To them, the great rambling barn back of the parsonage was a most delightful place. It had a big cowshed on one side, and horse stalls on the other, with a "heavenly" hay-mow over all, and with "chutes" for the descent of hay—and twigs! In one corner was a high dark crib for corn, with an open window looking down into the horse stalls adjoining. When the crib was newly filled, the twins could clamber painfully up on the corn, struggle backward through the narrow window, and holding to the ledge of it with their hands, drop down into the nearest stall. To be sure they were likely to fall—more likely than not—and their hands were splinter-filled and their heads blue-bumped most of the time. But splinters and bumps did not interfere with their pursuit of pleasure.

Now the twins had a Secret Society—of which they were the founders, the officers and the membership body. Its name was Skull and Crossbones. Why that name was chosen perhaps even the twins themselves could not explain, but it sounded deep, dark and bloody—and so was the society. Lark furnished the brain power for the organization but her sister was an enthusiastic and energetic second. Carol's club name was Lady Gwendolyn, and Lark's Sir Alfred Angelcourt ordinarily, although subject to frequent change. Sometimes she was Lord Develing, the villain of the plot, and chased poor Gwendolyn madly through corn-crib, horse stalls and haymow. Again she was the dark-browed Indian silently stalking his unconscious prey. Then she was a fierce lion lying in wait for the approaching damsel. The old barn saw stirring times after the coming of the new parsonage family.

"Hark! Hark!" sounded a hissing whisper from the corn-crib, and Connie, eavesdropping outside the barn, shivered sympathetically. "What is it! Oh, what is it?" wailed the unfortunate lady. "Look! Look! Run for your life!"

Then while Connie clutched the barn door in a frenzy, there was a sound of rattling corn as the twins scrambled upward, a silence, a low thud, and an unromantic "Ouch!" as Carol bumped her head and stumbled.

"Are you assaulted?" shouted the bold Sir Alfred, and Connie heard a wild scuffle as he rescued his companion from the clutches of the old halter on which she had stumbled. Up to the haymow ladder they hurried, and then slid recklessly down the haychutes. Presently the barn door was flung open, and the "Society" knocked Connie flying backward, ran madly around the barn a few times, and scurried under the fence and into the chicken coop.

A little later, Connie, assailed with shots of corn-cobs, ran bitterly toward the house. "Peeking" was strictly forbidden when the twins were engaged in Skull and Crossbones activities.

And Connie's soul burned with desire. She felt that this secret society was threatening not only her happiness, but also her health, for she could not sleep for horrid dreams of Skulls and Crossbones at night, and could not eat for envying the twins their secret and mysterious joys. Therefore, with unwonted humility, she applied for entrance. She had applied many times previously, without effect. But this time she enforced her application with a nickel's worth of red peppermint drops, bought for the very purpose. The twins accepted the drops gratefully, and told Connie she must make formal application. Then they marched solemnly off to the barn with the peppermint drops, without offering Connie a share. This hurt, but she did not long grieve over it, she was so busy wondering what on earth they meant by "formal application." Finally she applied to Prudence, and received assistance.

The afternoon mail brought to the parsonage an envelope addressed to "Misses Carol and Lark Starr, The Methodist Parsonage, Mount Mark, Iowa," and in the lower left-hand corner was a suggestive drawing of a Skull and Crossbones. The eyes of the mischievous twins twinkled with delight when they saw it, and they carried it to the barn for prompt perusal. It read as follows:

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

By DAISY DEAN

Gertrude McCoy will this month signalize her appearance as a star in Mutual pictures, following her success in "The Isle of Love," by playing the leading role in "Gates of Divorce." Miss McCoy has been especially fitted with the part by Robert Burns, author of a number of screen successes. It is that of a petulant, foolish wife who is wrapped up in trivial society affairs and in her pet dog to the exclusion of her home-loving, hard-working husband. The name of the photoplay is symbolical of the anguish through which the wife must go before she finds that her true happiness is not through the "gates of divorce," as she had thought once.

Miss McCoy is supported by practically an all-star cast. Alexander Garden plays the husband, Iva Shepard plays the society friend, Lucile Tatt appears as the apparently simple maiden into whose clutches the husband is thrown by the social black-leg, an unsympathetic role in the capable hands of John Reinhard. The scenes are laid in society in New York city.

Hindu Wants Film "Hazard"

Vishwanath Chintman Bhide, who lives in Poona City, Bombay Presidency, India, writes Universal confessing a desire to become a moving picture actor. Having seen Grace Cunard and Francis Ford in India he concludes he also would like to "hazard" himself in the films. He writes: "I am very much anxious to hazard myself in coming over there and act in your European as well as Indian films. I am a high class Hindu and venture to ask what pay is for me if you allow me to come over there. I shall be very much obliged and thankful if you will not hesitate to give me this opportunity and I hope you will send all your detailed particulars necessary for my information and guidance."

In "The Seekers," Flora Parker DeHaven is a member of a religious sect. Devoted to charitable works, she becomes a nurse in the home of a preacher, one of the leaders of the community. Her brother, convicted and sentenced to prison for a crime of which he was innocent, is destined to play a large share in her life. The son of the minister is the local sheriff and madly in love with Flora. And upon these things the plot stands.

"The Shepherd," a five-reel feature being made by Lloyd Carleton, featuring Dorothy Davenport and Emory Johnson, is nearing completion.

Helene Rosson has been with the American company for over a year, and now she is to be starred in "The Sign of the Spade."

NORTH SIDE

BATH HOUSE WANTED BY NORTH SIDERS PETITIONS AFLOAT

The north side is making its greatest fight for a bathhouse on Black river. Dozens of petitions are being circulated about the north side and hundreds of signatures have already been procured.

That the petition will not be presented to the city council before at least two thousand signatures have been affixed is the spirit of north side residents, who have constituted themselves self-appointed proponents of the movement.

Daily hundreds of bathers, men and women, boys and girls, youths and young ladies, take dips in the river, but are obliged to don their bathing clothes at their homes in the absence of a dressing house. The need of a bathhouse has been made doubly apparent during the present heat.

Several sites are suggested for a bathhouse, chief of which is the beach midway between St. Cloud and Clinton streets. The park space immediately north of the Black river bridge would also make an ideal spot, it is advanced, if the sewers were made to empty below the spot.

ELECTRIC PLANT IN MILWAUKEE'S DUBUQUE SHOPS

Installation of the new electrical system in the car and mill departments of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway's shops at Dubuque, Iowa, completed some time ago is said by officials to have greatly increased the power of the entire shops.

The change to the electrical system was made because of the large amount of work being done at the Dubuque plant. The electric motors, now doing the work of the old steam power plant are of the latest type. The Dubuque shop is one of the largest the Milwaukee has.

CITIZENS WILL BUILD TRAINING BARRACKS IN TEN AMERICAN CITIES

NEW YORK, July 18.—It was learned here today that a group of prominent New Yorkers plan to build permanent citizen training barracks in New York and nine other American cities this fall.

Former Supreme Court Justice Henry A. Gildersleeve is responsible for the idea. His plan is to erect buildings in the big cities of the east, middle west, far west, north and south of the United States where young men and boys can make their home winter and summer while they are being trained as non-commissioned officers for a volunteer army of American citizens.

The league has been incorporated in this state by Judge Gildersleeve, John R. Stanton, the copper man; Roger A. Pryor, Jr., son of Judge Pryor of New York; J. Norman Bulkley and several others.

Detroit, Chicago, San Francisco, Boston and Philadelphia are included in the list of cities to have barracks.

The combined accommodation facilities of the ten barracks will be 2,600 men. The plan has been endorsed by the war department, its backers say, and work on the buildings is expected to be under way before fall.

SHERIFF KILLED BY BANDIT AND COMMUNITY HUNTS

HALETT, La., July 18.—On citizens in Opelousas parish Monday were going about armed, searching for bandit Hilaire Carriere, who last night shot and killed Sheriff Swords and two negroes near here.

Carriere, who had a record of killing seven men before he killed the trio Sunday night, was being taken to the penitentiary by Swords. Carriere made his third escape recently. The murderer shot his way free Sunday night when the sheriff marched him through a lonely section of the parish.

its use the hair dries rapidly with that it will look much heavier than delight you, while the stimulated hair growth.

a handsome national guardsman,
member of the Indiana First Infantry regiment, has lost his heart to a Mexican belle, this not less a personage than Carranza's own niece,
and in the event of a war with Mexico would find himself in the cruel obligation of marching upon his be-loved's country. The principals in the story are Private Sherwood Moe,
son of a wealthy contractor of Gary,
and Senorita Cralia Carranza, who was educated at Notre Dame university in Indiana. There she met Miss Margaret Moe, a sister of Private Moe, later visiting at the Moe home, where the romance began. When ordered to join his regiment at the command of President Wilson a few weeks ago, young Moe was preparing to leave on a trip to Mexico.

Sixty-one Women Delegates to Prohibition National Convention
(By United Press.)

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 18.—There will be sixty-one women delegates in the prohibition national convention
when it opens here tomorrow to name
a national ticket. There were fewer than fifty women delegates in the republican and democratic national conventions combined.
Included in the list of women
delegates here are the wives of two former presidential candidates of the prohibition party: Mrs. John Bidwell of California and Mrs. Eugene Chaffin of Arizona. Mrs. Francis E.
Beauchamp of Kentucky is the only woman delegate at large elected in a non-suffrage state. Miss Marie C.
Brehm and Miss Helen Hild of Chicago are two of the 18 Illinois delegates at large. There are 13 other Illinois women delegates from congressional districts. The only woman delegate regularly elected in a primary in a non-suffrage state is Mrs.
Emerson Wold of Alexandria, Minn.
Pre-convention activity centered
today upon the meeting of the "Five Million Voters' club." This meeting is to pledge 5,000,000 voters belonging to it, not to vote for any presidential aspirant who declines to oppose the liquor business nationally.

Woman Will Run
For Senator

Mrs. John B. Allen of Seattle, widow of the first United States senator from the state of Washington, will run for the republican nomination
for senator on a platform comprising national suffrage, national prohibition and international peace in the platform. Her opponents will be Senator Poindexter and W. E. Humphrey.

Pin Money from Butterflies

Miss Limena McGlashan, a young California girl, has cleared $500 in ten weeks of butterfly farming and is at present averaging as much as $75 a week for her work, which is done only in the summer. Her outfit for the work is of the simplest,
consisting only of fruit jars and barrels covered with gauze to contain the caterpillars, a net and a few cyanide bottles for day work, and a miner's lamp for use at night. Plenty of moths sell for a dollar a specimen.

150,000 Women and Girls Work
In French Munition Factories
PARIS, June 18.—(By Mail.)—
One hundred and fifty thousand women and girls today are working in the munition factories of France.
They constitute one-third of all
French munition workers.
In other words, these women have provided 150,000 soldiers for the French fighting front, in addition to making the ammunition for them to fight with.
A statement has just been issued by the women telling the government
that they can now provide 300,000

GERMANS URGED TO HAVE CONFIDENCE IN ARMIES

AMSTERDAM, July 18.—The German people are urged to retain their confidence in the ultimate success of the German armies and to disregard "lieing reports" printed in the foreign press in lengthy articles
printed in the Berlin newspapers.
Advices from Berlin say that a similar appeal issued by the German general staff and labelled an "appeal to the German nation" was really inspired by the kaiser, after a conference with his generals.

more women workers to do all the French munition making and increase by that number the fighting force of the republic.
Under her ornamental and sometimes frivolous exterior, the French-
woman is as solid as a rock, an admirable home manager, a past master
at domestic economy and often as good a business man as her husband.
The fact that many of these women
are, on an average, handling 2,000
shells a day, each weighing 14
pounds, has proved that they are physically as well as mentally capable of doing a man's work. They have more endurance than men.

Dolly Varden Skirts all the

ATLANTIC CITY, July 18.—The boardwalk, most frivolous and cosmopolitan of all thoroughfares, today bears a distinctly colonial appearance as the result of the Dolly Varden skirt rage which has just hit
it. These pretty, flowing flowered skirts have been fashionably extinct for many years. The flowered figures upon them often are five times
the size of the original.

HOW TO BE SLIM
If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20
pounds, don't starve and weaken
your system, or think you must always be lashed at on account of your fat, but go to City Book
and Drug Store, 506 Main street,
or Columbian Pharmacy, 128 So.
Fourth street, and get a box of Oil of Korein capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.
Weigh yourself once a week
and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body.
It costs little, is absolutely harmless and a week's trial
should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly
fat.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15
pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying.
First weigh yourself for the measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell
the fat producing contents of the men and women we believe can easily add
from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.
Sargol does not of itself make fat,
but mixing with your food, it aims to turn the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat
producing nourishment for the men and blood—prepare it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. Much of this nourishment of your body is lost as waste.
But Sargol works to stop the waste and do it quickly and to make the fat producing contents of the body
same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Hoechstler Bros. and other leading druggists in this vicinity
sell it in large bottles—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in each large box.

PUBLIC DEBATE

To the Editor La Crosse Tribune:
Dear Sir—I noticed a passage in the Leader-Press of the 21st of June referring to the recruiting of the Wisconsin National guard, which reads that, "A number of men. EVID-ENTLY TRAMPS, also asked admission to the company but were refused because of non-residence." Not being acquainted with your state laws I would infer that the latter part of the paragraph is perfectly allowable; but what about the first part. I would call it a direct slur.
I am an Englishman, although pretty well Americanized and I believe I am quite safe in saying that when England called for her sons to volunteer to shed their blood in defense of the empire that she did not refer to her casual or migratory workers as "tramps." And I also think I am equally safe in the assertion that the newspapers of the other European countries concerned in the war did not either. Of course I admit that their case is a little different because of their conscriptive
military laws.
Do the people of La Crosse ever stop to consider that fully 75 per cent of the men beating their way north this time of year are bound for the harvest fields? The floating laborer is more needed in the United States than any other country in the world, on account of the vast territory of wheat lands which could not possibly be handled by the native labor, and then during the lapse between seasons the floater has to seek work elsewhere, for the agricultural communities have hard work enough
at times to find employment for their own citizens. What would happen to the granary of the world if for just one season the migratory worker absolutely refused to help the farmer?
A national, yea, and a worldwide
calamity.

By the way, in England the man who is designated as a tramp is a person who goes begging for alms
and food from town to town and door to door. Another thing, the government of this country estimated not long ago that during the most prosperous of times in the United States
at least a million people must necessarily be idle. I will leave you to draw your own conclusion.

But to return to the main point.
I think it is a burning shame that men who come forward voluntarily
and offer their services of their country in time of need, should be referred to through the public press as common tramps.

Just hark back to the time of the Spanish-American war when it was well known that one regiment from New York state was composed almost wholly of laborers or floating workmen without a home. This Mexican affair will most probably be amicably settled now, but it might have been otherwise. Anyhow at the start it looked as if it were staged for anything but a Central American opera bouffe war and Uncle Sam
might have been glad to call on the tramps.

Not even the most favored of us
in this world know how the tide of fortunes will turn, so let us remember and don't kick the poor dog when he is down.

Yours respectfully,
F. D. BURTON.
"A Migratory Worker."

Verse and Reverse

THE MEADOW FOND
By Madison Cawein.
Like a good conscience, in the day
It dreams, its silence full of blisses.
The West Wind stoops to it and kisses,
And sets its flowers with joy away.
The dragonflies gleam over it
In needles, blue and gold that knit
The sunlight on its countenance.
Where water-spiders skip and dance.
The lily to its lily tips,
Low-leaning to the lullabies.
The reeds intone, the wilding rose
Nods, and a sighing comes and goes.
As if the silence murmured, Peace!
The water whispered, Rest! repose!

THE HASKIN LETTER
LATIN-AMERICAN ARBITRATION
By Frederic J. Haskin
A crisis was recently averted in Mexico after the armies of two nations had already met in one struggle, and war feeling was running high on both sides of the border.
Among fair observers of all opinions, it is generally agreed that the threatened crisis would have been a disaster to both countries; for it would not have forwarded any purpose or plan, but would simply have been bad feeling run to bloodshed. It would have been a permanent blot
upon the record of Pan-American relations.
It is generally known that during the emergency, repeated offers of mediation came from various Latin-American governments; and that the best newspapers in South America expressed the hope that peace could be preserved for the sake of the Pan-American spirit. It is not so generally known that the corps of Latin-American diplomats in Washington were an active force in preserving peace.
A close observer who has an intimate knowledge of what transpired in Washington followed the Carrizal incident states that Ignacio Calderon, Minister from Bolivia, and dean of the Latin-American diplomatic corps,
ought to receive the Nobel peace prize as a recognition from Europe
of the broad-minded spirit of conciliation which has grown up in the New World, and which helped to avert bloodshed and disaster when both seemed unavoidable. Men have been honored with this award for writing books on peace, and for concluding treaties between nations exhausted by war. It has never, so far,
been awarded to anyone who prevented
a war.
Although the fact is realized by few in the United States, Latin-America has a record for the settlement of disputes by arbitration which Europe
ought to envy. There is no Hague tribunal south of Panama, but bloody wars have repeatedly been averted
by the appointment of referees, and it is not on record that the prestige
and dignity of the Hague tribunal
have ever achieved as much.
The most famous, because the most picturesque incident in the history of Latin-American arbitration is the one which brought into being the "Christ of the Andes." Chili and the Argentine were on the verge of war
over a border dispute. Certain broad-minded statesmen in the former country determined to avert the bloodshed which they believed was unnecessary. But feeling was running high and the romance and lust of war had blinded both peoples. The leaders knew the character of their people and realized that something as spectacular and stirring as war
itself would be necessary to avert it.
Wherefore, it happened that the brass cannon of the Chilean army
were maled, and cast into an heroic figure of the Saviour. This was erected upon the disputed boundary as a message of peace and good will to the enemies of Chili. The people of Argentina met the spirit of conciliation fairly, and the boundary dispute was settled by arbitration. Incidentally, a small cast in gold of the Christ of the Andes was sent to The Hague tribunal as a message to Europe that in South America arbitration is a reality.

The most fertile cause of trouble
between the different nations in Latin-America has always been their boundaries. These were nearly all first determined in the brave days when Spain was exploring and conquering
America, and when the king granted
to his admirals and captains lands
"as far to the west as the eye can see," and by other equally vague
definitions, which might be interpreted in dozens of different ways.
In addition to these boundary disputes, there have, of course, been the wars which brought freedom from Spain, and numerous revolutions.
These, however, were all in some sense struggles for freedom and better government. They have given Latin-America a reputation for impulsiveness and bloodshed, when as a matter of fact many a heated quarrel
has been settled in that land without firing a shot.
The Latin-American is willing to fight, and not afraid to die. His wars, when they do happen, are apt to be long and bloody. One of the worst of them was the struggle between Paraguay on the one side and Argentine, Brazil and Uruguay on the other. For seven years the forces of three nations made unceasing and murderous warfare on the forces of
one. An Argentine general was then sent at the head of a large force to finish the job. He went into Paraguay but turned back without fighting. He reported that he would not make war upon women. For women and boys filled the ranks of the Paraguayan army. The men were dead. And to this day Paraguay has an overwhelmingly large population of women. She has never fully recovered, though half a century has passed since that struggle.

This and several other hard fought wars convinced the leading men of the South American republics that their young countries, with great wildernesses to people, could not afford such waste of human life. So a strong sentiment in favor of arbitration grew up, and has steadily strengthened.

Stones are even now being planted
on the newly established boundary between Peru and Bolivia. A dispute between these two countries had gone to the verge of war when a movement in favor of arbitration was started, and Great Britain was asked to settle the difficulty. A commission of three men was appointed to do so, and both countries abided
by its decision.
President Hayes of the United States, settled a territorial boundary dispute between Paraguay and Argentine, which had gone close to war
when he was asked to mediate. He did so by deciding in favor of Paraguay, although Argentine had a rath-

SUMMER RESORTS
RUSHED; KILBOURN
SEASON BEGINS

KILBOURN, Wis., July 15.—(Special.)—The sight-seeing season is on
in full blast at Kilbourn and with it,
hotels and summer resorts are experiencing their usual mid-summer rush. A dozen buses meet every incoming train. Hundreds of tourists have passed through here on motor trips across the country. Most every party stops a few days and sometimes for weeks.

The daily trips to the Dells are naturally the features of the traveler's program. Excursions are enroute at most every hour of the day for both the shorter trip and to the lower Dells and the more extended trip
above. The most important beauty spots have been leased by the local companies and short walks are taken by passengers in conjunction with their trips through the Dells.
Trip Tonight
One of the special trips to be given by the Dells Boat company tonight
by moonlight. A dance at the Dells inn of two hours' duration will be a feature of the evening trip. The steamer Apollo, which will make the journey, carries an exceptionally large searchlight for the amusement of its passengers. The Peterson Harp orchestra is to provide the music this evening.

Rain Valuable
The heavy rain which fell in this vicinity yesterday morning and the latter part of the week spelled salvation for crops in this vicinity. The er strong case. Nevertheless the latter country accepted the decision
without protest, while Paraguay named a city Villa Hayes in honor of the president.

There was once a difference between Brazil and France as to the boundary of French Guiana. It was arbitrated, Switzerland acting as the referee, at the instance of Brazil.
Spain acted as mediator between Venezuela and Colombia, settling a difficulty which had caused much bitterness of feeling. Chief Justice White of the United States supreme court settled a boundary dispute between Panama and Costa Rica.
The people of Latin-America have had much cause to fight. They have been building republics in a wilderness peopled with savage tribes, they have obtained freedom from European domination. We did both of these things, but not without bloodshed. For a time, too, this country was a cluster of little states, and there was much feeling and considerable fighting among them. All Latin-America is still in that condition. And out of it has evolved a genuine appreciation of the principle and value of arbitration to aid in the solution of Mexican trouble been brought to the attention of the world
for the first time.

are not known here. A number of La

MANIAC DIES FROM SHOT OF OFFICER HOLDS OFF FORCE

way. Meanwhile, Harry Knox and his wife came to their doorway and looked out on to the yard where McIntyre was dealing death. Both fell. Knox was dead. His wife was wounded.

Half a block down the street, which is occupied largely by Negroes, Alfred Mathews, Negro, came to his doorstep. McIntyre's bullet went through his head and he fell out on the sidewalk. His body lay there for hours while bullets whistled over it.

Rifles, Revolvers and Dynamite
Rifles, revolvers and dynamite were all brought into play by the besiegers, while thousands of people thronged adjoining streets in danger of flying bullets.

McIntosh was armed with a repeating rifle and a reserve supply of revolvers and ammunition. His wife assisted him in holding the fort.

Shortly after the battle began, Police Chief Healey arrived on the scene and took charge. He directed the digging of a tunnel leading to below the house, where dynamite was placed by quarrymen.

The police, under cover of fences and telegraph poles, kept up a continuous fire on the McIntosh home.

McIntosh replied with rifle and automatic revolver fire. The windows of the McIntosh home were soon riddled with bullets and the doors practically shot away.

Shortly after daybreak McIntosh came out in his yard armed with a repeating rifle. He fired into the air and at adjoining buildings for some time without bringing his neighbors to their doors. As fast as they appeared at the doors and windows McIntosh opened fire on them. A number had narrow escapes.

Kills Policeman

Then the police came. Dean, a veteran of the force, walked calmly into the door. McIntyre shot him dead. Policemen Clemons and Crabtree stooped over his body and tried to drag it out of range. Both fell, seriously wounded. The remainder of the policemen dared death and dragged the bodies of the two injured policemen out of range. Then they posted themselves behind telephone poles, corners of houses and other temporary shelter, while reserves were brought up.

One hundred policemen were soon in the block armed with rifled and automatic revolvers. From his brick fort McIntyre kept up a constant fire on the besiegers, who, in turn, riddled windows and doors of the fort with rifle fire.

Set Off Dynamite

Nearby was a quarry. Policemen sent for dynamite and quarrymen to handle the explosive. Sticks of dynamite were hurled through the windows, but exploded without routing McIntyre.

Finally, protected by an overwhelming rifle fire, quarrymen crawled under the corners of the house and set off four charges of dynamite, badly shattering the building, but apparently not injuring McIntyre, who dodged from window to window, keeping up a steady fire.

Then Detective Sergeant Hughes walked in, protected by heavy fire, and shot McIntyre down. Beside McIntyre, as he fell, lay the body of his wife, shot through the head. Around her waist was a belt filled with steel nosed bullets from a Springfield 30-30 that McIntyre had dropped as he fell and on the table beside McIntyre lay an automatic revolver. It is not known whether McIntyre shot his wife when he found that capture was inevitable, or whether she was killed by a policeman's bullet.

Thousands Watch Battle

While the battling was raging thousands came from all parts of the city and formed a ring for blocks around McIntyre's fort. They braved bullets which were whistling from all angles. Automobile parties hurried from more distant points. Overlooking the scene is a high railroad embankment. It was black with witnesses of the battle.

Believed a Crank

In McIntyre's house, riddled with bullets, was found a picture of Villa. The police also discovered writings showing that McIntyre had claimed to be an apostle and savior of the black race. Neighbors said that he had been acting strangely since Sunday and believed his mind, none too strong at best, had been crazed by the heat.

At the morgue where the body of Mrs. Overmeyer was taken, it was found that she was shortly to become a mother.

BRIDGEPORT IS GOING TO BUILD $1,000,000 WORTH HOMES FOR WORKMEN

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 18.—The war boom has run this town's population up to the point of overflowing. There are 2000 families here without roofs. So the Chamber of Commerce engineered a private corporation, organized with no idea of profit, to build a million dollars worth of model houses for them. The first work on the homes started here today.

It is estimated that nearly 50,000 persons have moved here to stay in the last twelve months. Most of them were brought to help make munitions, but a part of the increase was caused by the establishment of 100 big factories of all kinds in the last few years, here.

The poorer workmen felt the pinch of the situation first. Landlords boosted rents when they saw what was happening, so the first work of the new corporation is the building of 400 two-family houses to rent at $12 to $18 a month.

WIRELESS REFUSED OFFICERS OF THE BOAT DEUTSCHLAND

BY CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BALTIMORE, Md., July 18.—The United States government today barred its Tuckerton, N. J., wireless station to the captain and manager of the German subsea freighter Deutschland.

Messages answering congratulations from Berlin and bearing American press comment on the Deutschland trip, were ruled off the apparatus by the United States censor. The Germans and German-Americans connected with the submarine venture, were plainly angered at this step, believing it to be unneutral.

The Deutschland's loading neared completion this forenoon. The last of the rubber should be in her hold before night, stevedores said. Two big gasoline tank cars were backed up to the wharf today and at least part of their contents will be dumped into the vessel to feed her three powerful Diesel engines.

As far as could be learned, the Deutschland intends to dash for the Virginia capes tonight.

One of the Germans connected with her venture announced early today that she had gone. A statement from A. Schumacher & Company's office, however, was that "anything we tell you about the leaving time will be a d— lie."

Despite this policy of misinformation, everything points to an early getaway.

Captain Koenig refuses to worry about the reported presence of an allied war vessel cordon off the capes. He still told friends he would get home safely.

The captain of an incoming steamer said today that England has a big fleet of warships and trawlers and a line of nets in the English channel, ready for the submarine. He believes the British policy will be to let the Deutschland pass the capes safely, with a view to seizing her later.

KAISER HALE AND OPTIMISTIC SAYS JUDGE NIPPERT

NEW YORK, July 18.—Kaiser Wilhelm is far from being the haggard, worn old man he has been pictured recently—he is hale and hearty, sunburned and tireless, and absolutely confident in Teutonic success.

This was the word brought back to the United States today by Alfred K. Nippert, common pleas judge in Cincinnati, who has been in Germany for three months and who, on June 24, enjoyed an opportunity to study the German emperor throughout an entire evening when he was his guest at the front.

Nippert went abroad as representative of the German societies of the United States, who are trying to build East Prussia from the ravages suffered by the Cossack invasion.

East Prussia Ravaged

"East Prussia has been more wantonly ravaged," Nippert declared, "than Belgium, the Balkans or any other part of the war stricken zone. The Russians who invaded there were not content with destroying for military purposes, but they wantonly destroyed everything in sight. Worst of all they made captive 10,000 women and children—some mere babes in arms—who have presumably been transported to Siberia. The Kaiser expressed the hope that as a neutral power representing Germany in Russia, that the United States would do all possible to restore these non-combatants to Germany."

Kaiser Wilhelm, Nippert said, was so interested that he asked Nippert to see President Wilson and make it personal appeal on the emperor's behalf for the United States to intercede. Nippert will go to Washington and hopes to see the president tomorrow or Friday.

BADGER SOLDIERS WELCOME REPORTS PREDICTING ROW

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 18.—(Special.)—News that bandits in Mexico are beginning to show new activity was received with enthusiasm by the troops of the Wisconsin brigade at Camp Wilson. Chances of active service on or across the border are seen by the soldiers in the reports. The routine will come to a sudden end. They came to the border keyed up for trouble, and they would welcome a mix.

After a day of rest on Sunday, the men started drilling early Monday morning. Close order movements were still executed by the infantry while the members of Troop A, were put through skirmish drills by Lieutenant Bengs. The mounted troopers and the members of Battery A, were given mounted drill. Both are making good headway with their horses.

Establish Guard

A close regimental guard has been established around each Wisconsin regiment and few persons are allowed to pass through the lines. Camp Wilson, where the Wisconsin men are camping, is now a great city of tents with about 14,000 soldier inhabitants. Troops have been coming in almost daily and the place that was once a prairie around the Wisconsin men, is now thickly settled with guardsmen and regulars. Supplies, arms and ammunition are arriving by the trainload.

The First Field hospital corps of Wisconsin arrived at 8:45 o'clock a. m., Sunday.

Will Reorganize Companies

The machine gun company and supply companies of infantry regiments are to be reorganized. This will be completed in few days. Under present plans, officers and men are assigned to machine gun and supply companies from other companies.

Army officers inspected several companies on Sunday and declared First Infantry Machine Gun company the best equipped militia command that has arrived here so far.

Badgers Kick on Food

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin has received from the officers of the First Wisconsin infantry at San Antonio, Tex., a complaint because of an alleged shortage of food supplies. The complaint was submitted by the Wisconsin senator to the war department.

Senator La Follette was informed by Secretary Baker that an investigation of food conditions, as well as other matters complained of by the militiamen, was in progress on the border.

General Tasker Bliss, assistant chief of the general staff, with assistants, was sent from Washington to look into the complaint, ascertain the exact conditions, and report at the earliest possible moment to the secretary. When this report is received its contents will be made public, and congress will be left free to determine any steps necessary.

General Funston and army officers on the border deny there is any shortage of wholesome food supplies, and say the militiamen are getting exactly the same rations and allowance given the regulars, and that regulars have not suffered physically or gone hungry.

SIEBECKER IN MINORITY OPINION DEFENDS THE LAW

MADISON, Wis., July 18.—The filing of a dissenting opinion in the Wisconsin supreme court yesterday afternoon, in which the contentions are made by Justice R. C. Siebecker that the provisions of the corrupt practice act held illegal by the majority opinion are in fact just and reasonable, raises the question as to whether the federal corrupt practice act now before congress does not suffer from the same legal infirmities as pointed out in the majority opinion. In the majority opinion Chief Justice Winslow, speaking for the court, held that section 12-95, which legal in that it was an abridgment of free speech. It is claimed by some of the leading politicians here that the bill in congress which passed the house last week contains many provisions similar to the Wisconsin law.

STATE TO HAVE 1.270 MILES OF NEW GOOD ROADS

MADISON, Wis., July 18.—From reports prepared by State Engineer J. D. Beck state aid in road construction will effect about 1,270 miles of road in the state this year. The statement gives the amount of funds available as $4,020,000. It arrives as the amount of probable construction in the state as follows:

Graded but not surfaced	520 miles
Concrete	80 miles
Stone macadam	250 miles
Gravel macadam	300 miles
Other permanent surfaces	70 miles
Non-permanent surfaces	50 miles

Total 1,270 miles
"Of this building program about twenty per cent was completed on July 1," said Engineer Beck. His report shows that the funds available for state aid in bridge construction is $403,106; that about $15 bridges will be constructed this year and that about 25 per cent of these were completed on July 1.

Work to protect the city of Portage from floods has also received the attention of the engineering department. At Portage the level of the Wisconsin may be from eight to twenty feet above the level of the Fox depending upon the stages of water. The distance between the two rivers is less than one and a quarter miles. A complete survey is now being made under direction of the federal government at a cost of $25,000 to ascertain just what can be done.

MAKING ADVERTISING VALUABLE

Edward A. Filene is the Marshall Field of Boston. He runs a great department store there. He was one of the speakers at Philadelphia at the meeting of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. And he made a statement in that speech which every advertiser ought carefully to consider. He declared he had found that, in advertising a store, profitable results could be obtained only from those newspapers which "resist the pleasure of our advertisers."

There are four things which an advertiser sometimes demands:

A rate that is lower than the newspaper regularly charges.

A position which it would be impossible for the newspaper to grant to another advertiser.

The suppression of news the advertiser may be interested in.

Free reading notice concerning something the advertiser is interested in and out of which he expects to make money.

The successful newspaper will not deviate from its announced advertising rates, because that is unfair and unbusinesslike. It can afford to turn down advertising offered below the fixed rate. A weak paper cannot do that and an unprincipled publisher who does cut rates cannot be trusted by any of the advertisers.

Position can be granted only as a result of an extra charge, or at the convenience of the paper, for otherwise the expense of providing the special position might cause an actual loss to the newspaper. It would be unfair to do for one advertiser what would not as readily be done for another using his space.

The newspaper that is worth while publishes the news without regard to whom it hits for the reason that it does not create the news but merely records what occurs and to be faithful in reporting what is worth while reporting in the community would be betrayal of the trust imposed in the newspaper by the subscribers who pay for the news service. Honesty of purpose, full appreciation of the obligation to subscribers, fearlessness and accuracy—these are qualities of the newspaper that make it respected and read in the community. People believe in that kind of a newspaper. Advertising in it is more valuable for the reason that it is respected. When an advertiser, as once in a long time one does, asks for the suppression of a news item because he is interested in it, he thereby makes a request which, if granted, would tend in time to undermine the quality and value of the advertising which he buys.

Quite naturally newspapers oppose free reading notices, not only because they are not news but also

so because they are advertising and should be paid for.

Mr. Filene recognizes that the newspaper that really is holding the confidence of the people and which, for that reason, is successful is at the same time able to refuse to grant requests that an advertiser might ask as favors. He recognizes that the newspaper of quality commands respect for the very reason that it is conducted as a newspaper and the people recognize it to be independent, fearless, determined, honest and sincere. It is worth more to the advertiser to have his advertisement in that kind of a newspaper, not only because of the quality, but also because a newspaper with a known reputation for square dealing also is bound to have the larger circulation.

Mr. Filene was right when he said that he had received profitable results only from those newspapers that "resist the pleasure of our advertisers."

PACIFIC STEAMSHIP COMPANY TO START OUT ON NEW VENTURE

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Pacific Steamship company, which abandoned its service to the Orient a year ago, declaring the La Follette seamen's act made it impossible to continue a profitable business, today announced the resumption of service between San Francisco and the Orient on August 19.

Where Man-Eating Shark Killed Man and Boy

At the spot where the boat is shown in this photograph a man-eating shark killed a man and a boy. It is Matawan Creek, a small stream or arm of New York Bay. For more than a hundred years boys have bathed in the stream at high tide, and have never feared sharks.

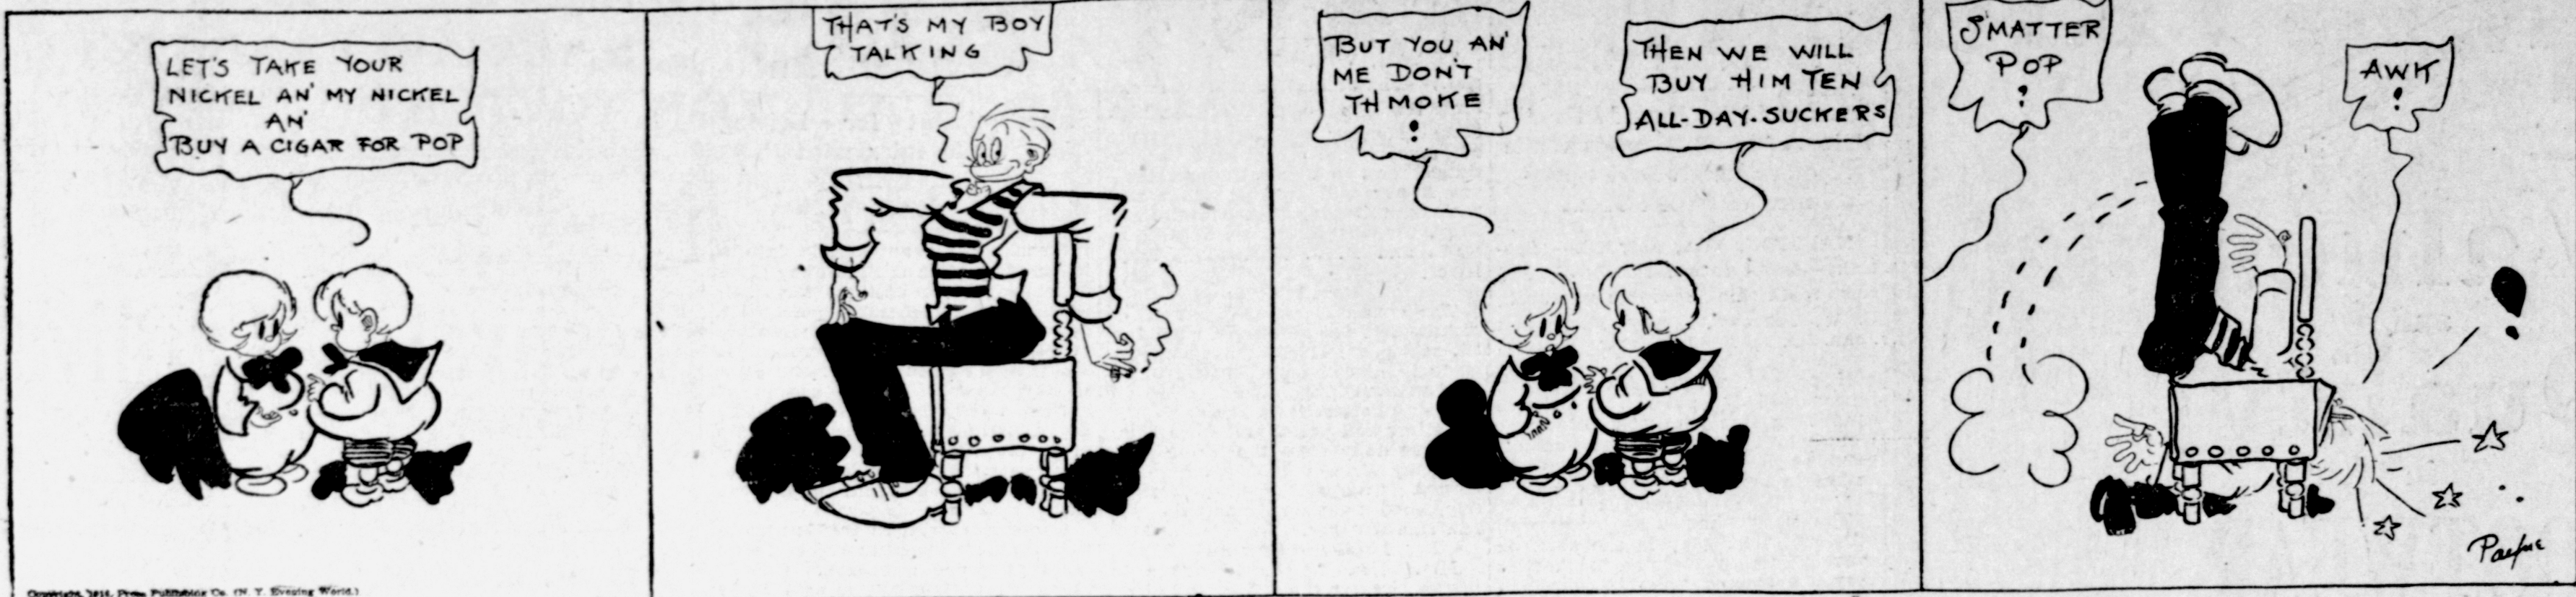

The lower picture shows a stuffed great white shark in the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. He is twelve feet long. Many photographs of harmless sharks have been published, but this is one of the two species, according to Robert Cushman Murphy, an authority on sharks, which is dangerous.

The chief interest in the raid of sharks on the Atlantic coast bathing resorts is the fact that it may mean the destruction of hundreds of millions in bathing pavilions and hotels. Unless means are found to protect bathers the hundreds of thousands who support this enormous industry will leave the coast for inland resorts. The advent of the sharks is a very serious business matter.

"Gee! There's Elsie Morton and old man Simpson again," said Jack Boyd to Philip Ware as they sat down at luncheon in a downtown hotel. "Have you noticed the coolness between Elsie and Fred Hartman?"

"Yes, everybody's noticed it," said Philip, "but neither Elsie nor Fred will tell the cause of it. I understand. Amy Moore, who will rush in where others would fear to tread, sounded them both, but got only an indifferent shrug from Elsie and a grouchy one from Fred."

"I'm inclined to think that Elsie's allowing that old rouge to dance attendance on her is an effect rather than a cause, of the quarrel," said Jack.

"Same thing is true of Fred's recent tendency to hit it up a bit more than he ever did before, I fancy," said Philip, with a regretful shake of his head. "It's a shame for two fine people to get in bad with each other that way, but an outsider can't butt in; so here's hoping they'll come to their senses without our aid."

"By George!" exclaimed Jack, a moment later. "The plot thickens, for here comes Fred and Amy Moore, this minute."

"And if I'm not mistaken, that sparkle in Amy's eye means she's got something up her sleeve. It can't be that she has designs on Fred, for she's happily engaged to his brother in Cleveland. She must be trying to annoy Elsie."

Amy, slim and trim in white corduroy, and with laughing brown eyes taking in the admiring glances that came toward her from the people at the tables all about her, looked up into Fred's serious gray eyes and brought her white-gloved hands together ecstatically.

"What a darling little table right at the open window!" she exclaimed. "Do let's sit there."

The table she indicated was near the one at which sat Elsie and her elderly escort. Without any apparent design except to allow herself to look out of the window at the street scene below, Amy seated herself so that Fred was facing Elsie, only two tables away.

The man who could have sat tete-a-tete with Amy without smiling frequently would have had to be blind and deaf, and as Fred Hartman was not so afflicted, his smiles were so many and so spontaneous that they made Elsie Morton decidedly uncomfortable. She had already become sickeningly tired of the simpering smirks with which her escort emphasized his glances at her, and in return for them she could now muster only a faintly indulgent smile that had in it a suggestion of the boredom she felt.

Except for a friendly nod upon first seating themselves, Amy and Fred seemed oblivious of Elsie's presence. Amy ordered only the lightest lunch, insisting that she must be away in half an hour at the latest. When she had almost finished her light luncheon she glanced about and saw Jack Boyd and Philip Ware sauntering toward the doorway. She flashed them a smile of greeting and bade Fred call them over as she wanted to ask them something about the coming dinner dance at the country club next evening. Nobody refused to obey Amy's commands, so Fred obediently beckoned to the two young men and they, as obediently, came over beside her table, where they stood listening to her chatter and putting in a word when she gave them a chance.

Although her luncheon was finished, Amy made no move to leave her seat until she saw Elsie and Simpson leave their table. Then she contrived to have the party of six acquaintances reach the elevator at the same time and make the descent together. Her only object was to bring Elsie and Fred into the general conversation, but an unexpected occurrence did far more than all her maneuvering to clear up the clouded atmosphere surrounding the estranged pair. When they reached the main floor they found that a summer shower was coming down in driving sheets. A man and woman rushed from a taxicab at the curb into the lobby where the group of six stood, reluctant to venture until the shower passed. The woman, who was young and pretty and well dressed, gave a pleasant exclamation when she saw Fred Hartman.

"Why, Mr. Hartman, what an unexpected pleasure!" Fred advanced with a cordial response to her enthusiastic greeting, and the lady added: "I'm so glad to have an opportunity to present my husband to you, for we owe you a lot for your kindness to me that dreadful day. Mr. Smith, Mr. Hartman," she concluded, and the two men shook hands. Smith was a big man, with a frank look about him which helped to make up for his rather showy taste in dress.

"Mr. Hartman," he said warmly. "Mrs. Smith has told me all about that harrowing hour and a half in a stuck elevator and of your lightning trip to the station afterward. Believe me, we appreciate your courtesy to a client in distress. She could never have got that train without your help, but she's still worrying because you missed a luncheon engagement with a lady who had deserted the trust before you could get to a telephone."

"Well, that misfortune was the fault of the stupid elevator man, and couldn't have been even remotely blamed upon Mrs. Smith, who was as unwilling a prisoner as I. It's too bad that unpleasant experiences are your lot on another visit to the city," Fred motioned toward the door, against which the rain was still pouring.

"Oh, we don't mind the rain," said Mrs. Smith, as they entered the elevator.

"Come, Fred Hartman, and 'fess up to this romantic affair your friends have mentioned," commanded Amy, as the elevator disappeared. "It's a good thing I wasn't the girl who had the luncheon engagement with you. I'd have scorned you ever after."

"Oh, come now," pleaded Fred. "To have lost the pleasure of your company and to have felt that I had caused you annoyance would have been punishment enough for me without your scorn. Isn't that a fair statement of the case, Elsie?"

"As far as it goes, yes," admitted Elsie, "but you must consider that Amy would not have known the real facts of the case until you told her, and imagine what her feelings would have been if—well—say if she had seen you rushing that handsome woman into a taxi just as she herself came out from a lonely luncheon."

"There, now!" said Amy saucily. "It's enough to make me weep, even though it's only a make-believe case, but I'm dying to know who the poor girl really was and how she took it."

"Perhaps she was too piqued at first to listen to an explanation," said Elsie promptly, to ward off Amy's further conjecture, "but I'm sure that when she did know all about it she was sorry she had acted childishly."

"You are quite sure, Elsie?" asked Fred, as if they were alone. And, indeed, they were practically alone, for Amy and Jack had exchanged knowing glances and had drawn the other two men over to the doorway to see whether the rain was slackening.

"Quite sure, Fred," said Elsie, very softly, "and bless those dear Smiths for making me both sorry and sure."

"Amen," whispered Fred, as they went in answer to Amy's delighted call to come and see the wondrous sunshine that had broken through the clouds.

PREPARATIONS KEPT BANDITS AWAY FROM BORDER, IS BELIEF

EL PASO, Texas, July 18.—The whereabouts of the Villista column which Carranza warned was headed for the Big Bend country was a mystery Monday. General Funston's preparations to prevent raids there probably caused the bandits to change their plans.

Telegraph communication was reported interrupted in the district around Juarez, where bandits and Carranza troops were in a fight Sunday afternoon.

EFFORTS TO AVERT STRIKE OF NO AVAIL

MILWAUKEE, July 18.—With both factions resting while Gov. E. L. Philipp made every effort to avert a strike of the Metal Trades unions, indications Monday were that a strike would be unavoidable. Although 1,200 machinists employed in the Allis-Chalmers plant were ordered to strike at 10 o'clock Monday, at the request of the governor, the strike was postponed for twenty-four hours to allow more time for negotiations. The governor conferred with the union leaders and at 6 o'clock last night met with employers in a final effort to adjust differences without the men stopping work. The union men demand an eight hour day.

CONVENTIONALITIES

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 18.—Pretty girls—regular prohibition girls—who are also young and winsome, will take a prominent part in this here national convention thing prohibitionists stage this week. There's Jewell Kennedy, 18, beautiful, talented and all that, who came from San Marcos, Texas, to present a platform she molded; then there's Eugene, Chafin's daughter, delegate from Arizona, referred to by the prohibition press agent as "very beautiful, and unable to vote for her father last election, because of her age."

NO SUFFRAGETTES WITH SELLS-FLOTO

There isn't a suffragette in the circus. And yet—
If there came a question into the minds of the inhabitants of that city of wanderers, known as the Sells-Floto circus, which is to come to this city for a one day's engagement, July 25, the women could have the vote or anything else they desired. That is, providing of course, that managerial capacity counted for anything.
For the Sells-Floto circus depends greatly upon its women. More than one branch of the big show is run almost exclusively by women, and run perfectly. For instance, there is Lucia Zora, who has charge of the training of all the elephants. There is Mrs. William Curtis, who personally supervises every inch of the wardrobe and designs the costumes, besides originating an act every now and then. There is Rosa Rosaland, the champion horse-to-horse somersault rider of the world, who has charge of all the other equestriennes in the show. There is Mrs. Charley Luckett, who controls all the aerial acts—and if that isn't enough, there is Mrs. Rhoda Royal, the horse trainer.

Everyone of the twenty or more high school horses which perform in the hippodrome track of the Champion Shows of the World owe their education to Mrs. Royal. Jumping, Jupiter, the auto hurdler; Rinaldo, the ballroom horse; Bathhouse John, Luckett and all the other champions of the sawdust ring, have been taught their every trick by the smiling little woman of the hippodrome track.

And they also owe their education to another thing—the old adage of the early bird.

"I always train my horses very early in the morning," Mrs. Royal says. "Often I am working with them before daylight. I have found that a horse's mind is most receptive then—and when a mind is most receptive, that is the time to instill things into it."
Mrs. Royal and all the other "Managers" will appear with the circus when it makes its appearance here. And of course they're going to be in the parade. In fact, a sample of everything in the circus will make its appearance in that parade at 10:30 circus morning, excepting of course, Jess Willard and Frank Gotch. The two champions who are the features of the show this year are to appear only in the performances. Frank Gotch, wrestling champion of the world, will demonstrate how he has conquered all contestants and it is announced that Jess Willard will be introduced in his original role of cowboy, as well as the champion heavyweight of the world. Incidentally, he will give an exhibition of sparring with his boxing partner and illustrate just how he won the championship.

KITTY GORDON IN THE CRUCIAL TEST BIJOU WEDNESDAY

After having conquered the British stage, Kitty Gordon came to the United States on an extended pleasure trip. Theatrical impresarios trailed her for weeks, besieging her with offers to play in American musical comedies, to which she succumbed after having refused many tempting engagements. The result was that she had theater-goers at her feet for years, at which time she became the idol of the light comedy stage. She was induced by William A. Brady to appear in motion pictures, contracting to make three features for the World Film. Two of her pictures have already been shown in this city, and her third, "The Crucial Test," will be the attraction shown at the Bijou theater on Wednesday, this week.

DEUTSCHLAND AND BILLY BURKE AT THE MAJESTIC

The German submarine "Deutschland" as it arrived in port at Baltimore will be shown at the Majestic today and Wednesday.
In addition to this feature Billie Burke will be shown in "Peggy."
Billie Burke is a born screen actress—she was probably a tomboy in her earlier life. Back of her fascinating vivacity are the high spirits of sound health; she is a fountain of natural energy and seemingly exhaustless vigor. Every movement, however nicely balanced by training, springs from the natural impulse of a woman to whom mere existence is a pleasure. Given a clever and attractive artist, Billie Burke's life comedy opportunity, such as Gardner Sullivan can provide, and the capable directing of Thomas H. Ince, what else than delight could be expected at this stage when scientific work is taken for granted?—Louis Reeves Harrison in the Moving Picture World.

WEEGHAN AND EBBETS WANT HERZOG'S WORK

CINCINNATI, O., July 18.—Charley Weeghan, owner of the Chicago Cubs and Charley Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers, were due to arrive here today to renew their bidding for Charles Herzog, manager of the Reds.
Previous propositions made by these magnates were turned down by the Reds, but now the proposed trade of Herzog to the New York Giants is being held up, they believe they can land the Red leader.
Before Herzog can be traded or sold to any club except the Giants, his consent must be obtained. He has agreed to go to the Giants. McGraw has promised him a three-year contract at $10,000 a year with a bonus of $2,000. Herzog has been drawing $10,000 a year as player and manager. His contract reads that he cannot be traded or sold without his consent.

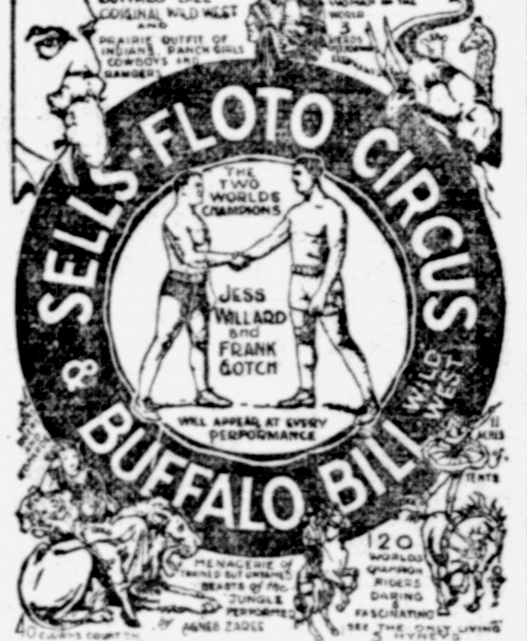

FREDDIE WELSH, GOADED BY TAUNTS, SIGNS TO FIGHT BENNY LEONARD

NEW YORK, July 18.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, stung by the taunts of the sporting world, has signed articles to meet Benny Leonard, the pride of Harlem, in a ten round bout at Washington park July 28.
At their last meeting Leonard decisively defeated the champion and has been clamoring for another match ever since.

The Yanks pinched both ends of their double-header with Detroit and are now two full games ahead of the Red Hose.

DELL FOOLS CUBS' HURLER AND DRIVES IN WINNING TALLY

CHICAGO, July 18.—Weiser Dell won his own game for Brooklyn on Monday. With men on second and third and two out, Hendrix purposely passed McCarthy to get Dell.

The Brooklyn pitcher came through with a single, however, scoring what proved to be the deciding run of a 2 to 1 game. An error paved the way for the sole Cub run and a brilliant catch by Stengel cut off another.

A number of Chicagoans were ejected from the bench in the ninth for noisy criticism of the umpires. The score: R H E

CHICAGO, July 18.—Charley White, who left yesterday for Minneapolis to finish training for his scrap with Freddie Welsh there on Friday, expects to win by a knock-out.
In addition to the purse hung up, a bunch of White's admirers have offered him cash and diamonds if he can turn the trick.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's Hero
He was not there. It was one of those days without a star or a dub, the teams winning or losing methodically.

Wheeler Dell came closest. He held the Cubs to five hits and then batted out the single that won for the Dodgers, 2 to 1.

President Lannin of the Red Sox donated Boston's share of the receipts to the soldiers' relief fund.
Tillie Shafer is a visitor in New York, not to play base ball, but golf. Tillie lives in the Angel City now and sells real estate to the tourists $1 down and $1 a week for life. He says he is through with base ball.

Bob Shawkey, who wasn't quite good enough for Connie Mack, won his twelfth victory of the year when he held the Detroit sluggers to six hits and no runs while his Yankee team-mates were banging out nine for two runs.

The Cardinals are getting loyal support from the home fans, 500 of them turning out to see the Giants whipped 5 to 1. It's the spirit that wins.

UTILITY YANKS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM THE TIGERS

NEW YORK, July 18.—Playing with a team consisting largely of utility men, New York increased its lead in the pennant race on Monday by twice defeating Detroit, 2 to 0 and 3 to 2. In the first game Shawkey outpitched Coveleskie. The former Athletic permitted only one Detroit player to reach third base.

In the second game, Love, a New York youngster, started his first game of the season and gave a fine exhibition until the eighth inning, when Donovan took him out after he allowed two hits, Russell replacing him.

The latter part of the first game and the entire second game were played in a heavy drizzle. Outfielder Oldring, who joined the Yankees on Sunday, did not appear on Monday. He left for his farm at Shiloh, N. J., after Saturday's game, and the club has not heard from since. It is assumed, however, that he missed train connections. The score:

First Game— R H E
Detroit . . . 00000000—0 6 1
New York . . . 00000200—2 9 1
Batteries—Coveleskie, Cunningham and McKee; Shawkey and Nunnemaker.

LEONARD NOT IN BEST SHAPE TO MEET WELSH

NEW YORK, July 18.—Now that Benny Leonard has been matched with Champion Freddie Welsh, the followers of the Harlem lightweight are getting anxious about Benny's condition. Fight followers regard the snapping up of Leonard as a clever move on the part of the champion. With the date only twelve days away Benny will have to work his head to get into the shape he displayed when he cut the champion to ribbons in their last encounter.

Cobb got to first base six times out of eight starts. His batting average was .667.
